This class was the last one to graduate in February, as a result of continuing efforts to streamline the academic schedule. Throughout the remainder of the decade and until 1971 the commencements were held in September. In 1971 and thereafter they were held in June.

In this year Margaret C. McClean was appointed the first non-nurse on the full time faculty as a registered dietician (Fig. 63). Several years later she was promoted to Assistant Director of the School.

In February, 1961, a cooperative program between Jefferson Nursing Department and Pennsylvania State University was established. Classes for faculty members, supervisors and head nurses were taught by faculty of Penn State. College credit was granted and 27 persons participated the first year.

Joyce Evaline Price ('49) entered the first class of women matriculants of Jefferson Medical College in this year. She thus became the first Jefferson Diploma Nurse to receive an M.D. degree from Jefferson in 1965.

Among the recreational facilities during this period was a very active student Nurses' Choir which was particularly effective during the Christmas season (Fig. 64). The basketball team was also popular at this time, winning some of the championships (Fig. 65).

There were 75 graduates this year.

In July of this year the position of Home Care Coordinator provided for referral of patients to community agencies such as the Community Nursing Service so that a patient's care could be continued after discharge from the hospital. This service became highly successful and was expanded in later years.

In September, Eva Woosley (Warren) from the Class of 1934 gave the graduation address to the fourth class of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She had received Masters degrees from Duke and the University of North Carolina and was serving as Dean of the School of Nursing at East Carolina College.

Corrine R. Kurzen was a staff nurse at Jefferson while pursuing further education. She received a B.S.N. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1967 and Master's degrees from Temple University in 1973 and University of Delaware in 1989. Her book Contemporary Practical/Vocational Nursing was published in 1989. She was employed in various capacities by the School District of Philadelphia and active in nursing organizations.

The graduating class numbered 74.

The School of Nursing conducted a television program on the University of the Air. In a 17-week course, instructors presented lectures using various visual aids on the subject "Healthful Living in the Community".

The "Miss Jefferson" contest launched in 1962 under the sponsorship of the student newspaper Caps 'N Capes became an annual event for eight years. Candidates were judged by the nursing staff, physicians and faculty on the basis of appearance in uniform, nursing care, personality, school spirit, talent and residence department.

The winner received a blue sash emblazoned with the title and year, a gold bracelet with a charm (a disc featuring a caduceus), and a bouquet of roses. The presentation drew an enthusiastic audience from all segments of the School family (Fig. 66).

The funds contributed by the Marjorie Benton Haviland Fund continued to provide instruction for members of the faculty, strengthening their own skills with resultant improvement in the educational programs.

There were 86 graduates in the class.

In this year Eileen Cancelli, a senior student, became president of Area #1 Student Nurses' Association of Pennsylvania. During the 1960s membership in the organization was mandatory for freshman students and optional for the upper classes. Jefferson was host to over 400 student nurses for an evening of entertainment and to select an area member to represent Philadelphia at the State Convention in Pittsburgh. This enterprise was supported by the Alumnae Association.

Student nurses participated in the city-wide campaign to immunize against poliomyelitis.

Basic nursing techniques were first taught through closed-circuit television in 1964. This obviated the need to handle heavy equipment for demonstrations. The Fundamentals Laboratory was thus converted into a TV studio.

The School of Practical Nursing, intended to fill a long perceived need, opened in November, 1964, under the Directorship of Elizabeth J. Sweeney. There were 22 students admitted to the first class.

The graduates numbered 74.

Five months of preparation culminated in the annual show, "A Musical Mistake", written and produced by the students and directed by class members Dianne Keegan and Judith Snyder. It was one of the most successful of the annual productions which included "Showboat", "A Fair to Remember", and "Fantastic Furlough". Proceeds this year were divided among the three classes and the Student Council.

Mary L. Bennett (Rocheleau) went on to specialized programs in nursing education. Having taken her M.B.A. in administration, she was appointed Nursing Career Programs Representative at the University of Colorado School of Nursing, Denver, in 1977. From 1979 to 1982 she was also Director of Presbyterian/St. Luke's School of Nursing in Denver.

There were 74 graduates this year.

The 75th Anniversary was celebrated at the Annual ALumnae Luncheon held May 7 in the Crystal Ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel (Fig. 67). The enthusiasm of the Alumnae was manifested by an attendance of 320.

In this year a "Position Paper", published in December, 1965, by the American Nurses' Association, created concern with respect to recruitment of student nurses and faculty for diploma schools of nursing. The recommendation was that nursing education should be provided in institutions of higher learning (such as Jefferson) and lead to a baccalaureate degree. Since diploma schools were providing 85% of the nation's nurses, the elimination of these schools could result in an even more acute shortage of nurses than already existed.

Bonnie Ann Crofford pursued a career in gerontology and rehabilitation medicine. She took a Master's degree in Gerontology at Case Western Reserve University and published articles on nursing aspects of geriatrics and rehabilitation.

This year's 73 graduates brought the 75th Anniversary total to nearly 4,000. Seven members of the class were commissioned in the Armed Forces.

This is my vow: To pefect my medical art and never to swerve from it so long as God grants me my office, and to oppose all false medicine and teachings. Then, to love the sick, each and all of them, more than if my own body were at stake. Not to judge anything superficially, but by symptoms, not to administer any medicine without understanding.

Paracelsus (1493–1541)

A Conference on Nursing Education was held at Jefferson on April 10, to explore necessary future innovations. Authorities in the field came as guest speakers from Massachusetts, Florida and California.

In this year a School of Allied Health Sciences was founded which incorporated the School of Nursing under its administration. Responsibility for the education of nurses was to be transferred from the Hospital on January 1, 1968. John W. Goldschmidt, M.D. (JMC '54) was appointed the first Dean. Miss Doris Bowman and Miss Mabel Prevost retained their respective positions as Director of the School of Nursing and Assistant Hospital Director.

Orlowitz Residence Hall was opened this year, allowing additional housing for staff nurses.

There were 90 graduates.

 Susan Watson (Jeff., R.N., '55), Viola Fox (Jeff., R.N., '37), Renee Weinberg.

Administratively the School of Nursing became part of the newly organized School of Allied Health Sciences.

The academic program was shortened from 36 to 35 months and the following year to 33 months.

In this year an affiliation agreement was signed with the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science whereby Jefferson nursing students could begin work toward a degree with college credit courses as electives. Twenty students enrolled the first year.

Complete block rotation was instituted for the class of 1970, which included courses in psychiatric nursing at Philadelphia State Hospital (Byberry) and Eastern State School for Children. Studies were included in "Student Evaluation of Courses in Nursing Education;" "An Analytical and Comparative Study of the Performance by Jefferson Graduates on State Board Examinations;" "Relation of Psychological Type to Nursing School Success at Jefferson (Class of 1968)."

Linda Meachum (Scheetz) pursued a career in nursing education and research. She received her B.S. in 1977, M.A. (New York University) in 1981 and Ed.D. (Columbia University) in 1988. She served as Chairperson, Division of Nursing, Mt. Saint Mary College, Newburgh, New York, and as consultant in many academic and clinical areas.

College entrance board examinations became an admission requirement.

The Alumni Association presented a check for $22,358 to President Herbut toward the Building Fund (Fig. 68).

There were 62 graduates this year.

The Jefferson Medical College and Medical Center became Thomas Jefferson University on July 1, 1969. At this transition, the School of Allied Health Sciences became the College of Allied Health Sciences. Nursing students were now able to participate in the elective programs offered by the College of Allied Health Sciences. Beginning in September, sociology and psychology were given as credit courses.

In this year the new facilities of Jefferson Alumni Hall became available to students of nursing. These included a gymnasium, swimming pool, lounges and meeting rooms (Fig. 69). Also, senior class presidents of the School of Nursing served on the Commons Board.

There were 87 members in this class.

The stresses placed upon the School of Nursing to scale down the Diploma Program in favor of the Baccalaureate Degree resulted in strenuous efforts to obtain more candidates. While concentrating its efforts on top-notch high school graduates, the School did not remain aloof from the social concerns of the times. Accordingly, this summer a remedial program was launched for a group of ten disadvantaged students to assist them in becoming qualified for admission.

The Scott Memorial Library occupied its new building at 1020 Walnut Street (Fig. 70). With four times the previous space, the collections of the Medical School and School of Nursing were integrated. The new facilities included several small rooms for study, numerous carrels and a browsing room for recreational reading.

Commencement exercises were held for 63 graduates at the Sheraton Hotel. The address was delivered by Dr. Ellsworth R. Browneller, former Jefferson Medical College Hospital Director and currently Secretary of the Department of Health of Pennsylvania.

*One does not ask of one who suffers: What is your country and what is your religion?
 One merely says: You suffer, this is enough for me: you belong to me and I shall help you.*

The early 70s constituted a time of philosophical restructuring of concepts relating to various levels of nursing education and service. The American Nursing Association had previously recommended the desirability of baccalaureate degree education. The ultimate thrust of the program was for nurses to obtain college degrees. Jefferson's College of Allied Health Science was planning accordingly for baccalaureate, diploma, and practical nursing.

Commencement exercises were held June 26 in the Sheraton Hotel Ballroom. Dr. Dorothy Novello, Chairman of the State Board of Nurses Examiners and Chairman, Division of Nursing, Villa Maria College in Erie, was the guest speaker.

At this time there were approximately 2700 nurses still living and the graduating class numbered 56.

The Baccalaureate program commenced in September with the Admission of 46 students who transferred from other colleges and universities. Charlotte E. Voss Ed.D. was the first Chairman of the Department of Baccalaureate Degree Nursing. She developed a curriculum encompassing a broad base in the natural and social sciences, arts and humanities. Her programs were enhanced by a $94,000 grant which she obtained from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

For the first time the Martin Residence was used as a housing facility for women university students other than nurses. The entire second floor was used for this purpose.

There were 62 graduates this year.

The Jefferson School of Nursing, in contrast to many other diploma schools, was now able to offer college credit for freshman courses in psychology (3), sociology (3) and microbiology (5). Students desiring additional credit courses had the privilege of enrolling in the College of Allied Health Sciences elective program.

In September the School of Nursing became coeducational with the admission of two male students, although male applicants had been accepted since 1971.

The graduating class numbered 68.

The Health Sciences Center (Edison Building) at Ninth and Sansom Streets was opened this year (Fig. 71). It was structured to implement innovative programs in ambulatory care, to provide space for the College of Allied Health Sciences, and to allow offices for Jefferson staff physicians. It would provide much needed space for instruction and student nurses.

At this time students could be married during the programs and live off campus. Of the 273 students, 10 were married and two had children. Night duty was a thing of the past.

There were 68 graduates.

~ 1975 ~

The move into the Health Sciences Center (Edison Building) raised the morale of the School's Administration Staff and Faculty. It provided spacious offices and ample classrooms (Fig. 72). This vacated three previously occupied floors in the Curtis Building. Students from other programs in the University were now occupying the Martin Residence which on July 1 was transferred to the supervision of the Director of Auxiliary Services of Thomas Jefferson University.

At the 82nd Commencement for the School of Nursing on June 21, 85 students graduated. This brought the total number of graduates to 4,572.

In this year the name of the Alumnae Association was changed to Alumni Association.

An Alumni Student Recognition award of $300 was established to be given to a Junior Student for the highest academic rank, including didactic and clinical experience.

This Bicentennial year was observed at Jefferson with a lecture entitled "Mr. Jefferson and Dr. Dunglison". It took place April 14, the day after Jefferson's actual birthdate. A colonial style reception followed.

The Winged Ox Column honoring 50 world-renowned physicians, including five from Jefferson, was erected adjacent to Orlowitz Hall. Barringer Residence Hall (Fig. 73) opened this year.

Commencement exercises were held June 12 at the Sheraton Hotel for 96 graduates. Dr. Robert I. Wise, Chairman of the Department of Medicine, delivered the address.

The practice of medicine is an art, not a trade; a calling, not a business; a calling in which your heart will be exercised equally with your head. Often the best part of your work will have nothing to do with potions and powders, but with the exercise of an influence of the strong upon the weak, of the righteous upon the wicked, of the wise upon the foolish.

William Osler (1849–1919)

A major administrative event occurred on August 1 with the arrival of Lewis W. Bluemle, Jr. M.D. as Jefferson's second President of the University (Fig. 74). At this time there were three Nursing School programs, - baccalaureate, diploma and practical, each with its own faculty, facilities and resources. He suggested a unified teaching program fashioned after that of medical education, one school with one administrative structure, one faculty, and one student body, but with a variety of education tracks commensurate with the interests and needs of the students.

The 84th commencement took place on June 21 at the Sheraton Ballroom with 88 students in the graduating class. The Address was delivered by Dr. John W. Goldschmidt, former Dean of Jefferson's College of Allied Health Sciences. In this year Marten M. Kernis, Ph.D. became the new Dean.

On October 4, 1975, the class of 1977 formally reinstituted the capping ceremony. We felt the need to honor our cap because to us it symbolized a life-long dream: to be a Jefferson nurse. Our cap represents a code of honor, pride, and integrity that we strive to maintain throughout our career. Therefore, we unanimously decided to restore this traditional ceremony, so that future nurses could witness this spirit.

The new Thomas Jefferson University Hospital opened in this year (Fig. 75). In providing a single standard of care it eliminated the old hospital wards and the clinics in the Curtis Building. The specialized intensive care units required a more sophisticated level of nursing care.

Harriet H. Werley ('41), Ph.D. received the Alumni Achievement Award of the College of Allied Health Sciences (Fig. 76).

The graduates numbered 84 this year.

Fig. 76. Harriet H. Werley ('41), Ph.D., receives the Alumni Achievement Award from Drs. Sweeney, Bluemle and Abrams (1978).

The painful acknowledgement that the Diploma School of Nursing had to be phased out was officially stated by Miss Doris Bowman, its Director, in a letter of April 19, to Dr. Abrams, Dean of Allied Health. This indicated that the students admitted this year would be in the last graduating class of the Diploma School. Although many alumni were saddened by this decision, the faculty and administration were in agreement that it was in the best interests of the institution.

Perma Ehrhart (Davis) of the class of 1941 became Alumni President this year and served until 1982 (Fig. 77). Having been connected with the School of Nursing as an instructor for many years, her recent assignment included supervising the health care of the student nurses.

There were 89 graduates this year.

Miss Patricia McBride, Class Advisor

This class of 1979 would like to extend our genuine appreciation to Patricia McBride, our class advisor. An advisor is defined as someone who gives counsel. We feel that Miss McBride gave us more than advice. She gave willingly of herself to each of us. She was always available to offer support, give encouragement or just to smile and say hello. All of us have benefitted from her ever present support of our class in all our endeavors. We hope to fulfill all her expectations of us.

Commencement was held on June 4 in the Ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. Seventy-four students received the diploma and school pin. The portrait of Doris E. Bowman ('42), Director of the School, was unveiled during the ceremonies and later displayed in the Scott Memorial Library (Fig. 78).
